

Religious Identity and Service • Religious Hiring

Our faith-based organization serves people without regard to religion and does not require participation in explicitly religious activities.

Our employment policy supports our religious identity and mission and our passion for service.

Our staff models our beliefs about faith and life to those inside and outside our organization. We consider religion when hiring, as the law permits; this is no different than what political and social organizations do to further their missions.

If a change in government rules makes it illegal to consider those of like-minded faith when hiring for our service programs, we regrettably will no longer be able to accept government funds to partner to provide those services.
